

COUPLE MAY APPEAR SOON

Despite Tragic Reports, an Alleged Mysterious Disappearance at Canada Lake May Prove to Be Only a Romance.

EVANS OF LEGAL AGE
MONDAY: THEN FORTUNE.

He Met Miss Brown at Summer Resort, and Soon Afterward Garments of Both Were Found in a Drifting Boat.

When Miss Florence Brown, who died with her mother at No. 23 West Thirtieth street, dropped from behind the counter of a big department store in this city to go on her vacation two weeks ago it was probably never to return to her position.

Up at Canada Lake, where Miss Brown and George H. Evans of Johnson City, N. Y., have been mysteriously missing since Monday, it is feared by some that neither will return anywhere. The girl's jacket and the young man's sweater were found in a drifting boat.

One of those swift summer romances is back of the situation.

Miss Brown went to Canada Lake with her sister, Mrs. Edward W. Bieing, of No. 13 Eighth avenue.

Arrived at the hotel, Miss Brown had put on her white duck suit but the first time when Mr. Evans spied her, and she saw the gentleman from Johnson City. From that time forward they could see no one else. They walked and they rowed and they sat beneath the shade of spreading trees. Miss Brown forgot all about people who say things one day and want to exchange them the next, and Mr. Evans remembered the girls in Johnson City only as in a dream.

But Mrs. Evans was very much alive to what was taking place. She noticed her son's feverish condition the day after the bewitching Miss Brown's arrival, and she took him down to one end of the hotel porch and had an earnest talk with him. She wanted him to hurry back to Johnson City. The son replied that Miss Brown was his affinity, and that, as affluence was scarcer than hen's teeth in Johnson City, he would stay.

Searching parties have tramped the woods, rewards have been offered for the finding of the bodies and they are getting ready to drag the lake. But Mrs. Bieing telegraphed to her mother and Florence's mother.

"I'll probably know all on Monday."

On Monday Mr. Evans will obtain his majority and will come into a fortune. Mrs. Brown isn't worrying. She says Florence is a smart girl.

PULL WILL NOT SAVE THEM.

Deputy Police Commissioner Davis serves notice on men at trial.

Deputy Police Commissioner Davis while trying delinquent patrolmen to-day declared that no amount of political influence would help accused policemen who came before him.

Joseph H. Cashman was before him for having gone off his post to buy a woman a postage stamp.

"Why did you write to my friend Hamilton Fish about your case?" Commissioner Davis asked.

"I didn't," the policeman replied. "My son did it against my wishes."

"I want all you policemen to understand," Mr. Davis continued, "that amount of influence will help you. I shall try your cases in this room and nowhere else."

A number of policemen detailed at various institutions were up before the Deputy for neglect of duty and Mr. Davis hinted that there would be a general shake-up among these men.

THE MOTIVE.

People don't read The World advertisements through idle curiosity—but from business motives. And the readers thereof are legion. World advertisements are profitable alike to reader and advertiser. The man who reads the advertisements does it because he seeks something. The same motive governs the man who advertises.

A Pointer—

This morning's World contained ninety-one For Sale and Business Opportunity advertisements. To seekers of bargains and opportunity for investment this is a rich field. For those who have bargains to offer, or seek capital, there are offers equally interesting. You can buy a grocery store, or sell a stock of groceries. You can sell a stationery store, or borrow money on stock to enlarge business. A hat and gents' furnishing goods store is offered for sale; a drug store in Jersey City; a partner is wanted in real estate business, and so on, over a long list of offers. It pays to read World For Sale and Business Opportunities every morning.

PRES. CASSIDY AS LIFE-SAVER

He and Other Members of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club Rescued Twenty-Five People from Sinking Sloop Alpha.

ELEVEN OF THESE WERE YOUNG WOMEN GUESTS.

The Last Soul Had Barely Been Taken Off When the Craft, Which Had Struck a Rock, Went to Bottom.

When Borough President Cassidy and some of his friends return to Long Island City they will be met by the Queens County River Cornet Band, which will accompany them in commemoration of their prompt action off New Haven Harbor yesterday by which they rescued from drowning twenty-five young persons, eleven of whom were women.

The story reached Long Island City to-day, via Greenport, and reads like a chapter from Marryat or W. Clark Russell. Here is the story as it circulates throughout the length and breadth of the Borough of Queens.

Tuesday the Knickerbocker Yacht Club set sail from College Point on its annual cruise. Among the yacht owners were Borough President Cassidy, on his sloop Stanhope; Surrogate Daniel Noble on the Bel Ami; and Chief Clerk William F. Hendrickson on the Cheetah, with Deputy Surrogate Commissioner Matthew J. Goldner as his guest, and the large sloop yacht Alpha, owned by a Mr. Riley, and having on board a party of twenty-five young people, with the requisite number of chaperones. The yachts put into New Haven Harbor Tuesday night, where they remained at anchor until yesterday morning, when the cruise was resumed. Greenport being the destination.

The Stanhope, Bel Ami and Cheetah were travelling rather close together, but the big Alpha was half a mile to windward, when a cry of distress was heard from her decks and a danger signal exposed. Then Mr. Cassidy and his friends saw that the Alpha had met with a mishap. All three sloops ran up as close as possible and discovered that the Alpha had struck a rock off Flimble Island and was filling. The captain shouted that the sloop was sinking fast, and immediately all was activity on board the rescuing craft.

It was impossible to run up alongside, so the small boats were lowered and put off to the sinking sloop. The women were rescued first. Mr. Hendrickson taking off six, surrogate Noble three, and Mr. Cassidy two. Then the boat returned for the men, who were safely removed, but only just in time, for the last boat had barely pushed off when the Alpha sank beneath the waters of the Sound.

Most of the young women were put aboard the Cheetah, where they were looked after by Mrs. Cassidy and Mrs. Noble. While the rescued men found quarters on the Bel Ami and the Stanhope.

None of the rescued suffered any ill-effects from their ordeal, and the cruise was resumed to Greenport.

WOMAN TRAIN VICTIM'S COMPANION SET FREE.

Jury Exonerated Clark, Who Was with Mrs. Welton When She Was Killed.

(Special to The Evening World.) HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 13.—Sheriff Soley has released Albert Clark, the man who eloped with Mrs. Reuben Welton, of Middletown, and who was with her at the time she met her death on the Erie tracks.

The coroner's jury had declared the woman's death accidental. Two brothers of the dead woman demanded that Clark be held until a warrant could be sent from Middletown charging him with bigamy, but the paper did not come and Clark was set free.

MAYOR OF DELANCEY STREET, JUST DIVORCED, AND THE WOMAN WHO IS TO BE HIS NEW BRIDE.

JAKE WOLF IS TO MARRY AGAIN

Mayor of Delancey Street Tired of Single Blessedness. Though He Has Been Divorced Only Four Weeks.

The Bowery was happy to-day when it was heard that Jake Wolf, the Mayor of Delancey street, who District Attorney Jerome tried to connect with the collier "dough bags," is to be married again, although his other wife got a divorce only four weeks ago.

The bride to be is Mrs. Rebecca Asher. until a few days ago she was employed as buyer for a big Broadway department store. She resigned her position to finish her wedding dress.

The date of the marriage has not yet been fixed, but Philadelphia has been selected as the place for the ceremony, as the Mayor of Delancey street is forbidden to marry again in this State through the decree obtained by his former wife.

After the ceremony the bridal pair will return to this city and there will be such a celebration as the Bowery hasn't seen in many a day.

Jake Wolf is known all over the east side. He has a saloon at No. 11 Delancey street. He was married on Jan. 26, 1899, to Miss Bertha Herzberg, daughter of Morris Herzberg, Mayor of the Bowery.

The couple did not get along. Wolf accused his wife of spending money faster than he could make it and she declared that he was not true to her. The wife had little trouble in getting her divorce.

When Mr. Jerome first took office he tried to connect Wolf with the police graft of the red light district. He also went after him when Wardman Bissert was arrested and later when Inspector Cross was up on charges but Wolf managed to come out all right.

FOUND MAN'S HEAD WRAPPED IN PAPER

Police of Long Island City Startled by the Gruesome Discovery of Several Small Boys Early To-Day.

A man's head, wrapped in a German newspaper, was found early to-day by several boys at the base of a large rock about two blocks from Wilbur avenue and Van Alt avenue, Long Island City. There was barely enough flesh on the head to distinguish that the features were those of a man.

The boys carried the ghastly bundle to the police station, whence it was taken to Coroner Ruoff, in Jamaica. As soon as the police saw the head they jumped at the conclusion that it was the head of Guldenuppe, who was murdered by Martin Thorne, Guldenuppe's head had never been found. This attempt to dismiss the gruesome evidence of a brutal murder is untenable, however, for several reasons.

Mrs. Nock, in her confession of the murder of Guldenuppe, stated positively that Thorne had first covered the head with a plaster cast and then thrown it in the East River.

It was physically impossible that the head found to-day could have floated up to the marsh in which it was found. Then, had it been the head of Guldenuppe, the process of decay would have left nothing but a few fragments of crumbling bones.

The rock near where the head was found is situated in a partially reclaimed marsh a short distance from a clump of trees. What led the police to jump at the conclusion that it was the head of Guldenuppe was that the store of Max Rieger, where Mrs. Nock and Thorne bought the cloth with which the dismembered portions of the murdered man's body were covered, is only a short distance from the spot where the head was found.

The printing on the newspaper in which the head was wrapped was dated with moist and damp. The date could not be made out, but there was sufficient script legible to make out that the printing was in German.

Coroner Ruoff will employ experts to discover how long the head had lain where it was and the approximate age and size of the murdered man.

DR. PLAYFAIR DEAD.

Noted English Specialist Had Figured in Big Slander Suit.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Dr. W. S. Playfair, the noted specialist in women's diseases, died at St. Andrews, Scotland, to-day.

He was the defendant in a slander suit which created some stir several years ago, when he was mulcted in $20,000 damages. The plaintiff, named Klison, was the brother-in-law of Dr. Playfair, who was adjudged to have slandered the plaintiff's wife.

He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital suffering from severe internal injuries.

REGIMENT OF COPS CHASED BURGLAR

He and Patrolman on Post Shot at Each Other, but the Alleged Thief Alone Had an Accurate Aim.

POLICEMAN IS IN HOSPITAL.

Two Bullets Struck Him, but His Wounds Are Not Believed to Be Serious—Patrolman Captain Turned Out Reserve.

The members of the Flatbush police station are out on a hunt for a burglar who answers police queries with her who answers police queries with William Slattery, who is in the Kings County Hospital to-day with bullet wounds in his shoulder and back. One of the bullets in the pursuit is the same burglar's former victim, Policeman John McGovern, who is just out of the hospital. The bullet wound he got all but proved fatal.

Policeman Slattery saw the man walking in Albemarle road, near East Twenty-first street, just after daybreak. He carried a big bundle under his arm. Slattery noticed that he was of medium height, stockily built and wore a mixed brown suit and a black felt hat without a band. Just the description of the burglar who shot McGovern, thought the officer, and he hailed him.

The man turned and leveled his revolver at the policeman. Slattery had taken no chances and his weapon was out. The men exchanged shots at a range of twenty yards. The burglar was the better marksman and out of three shots hit Slattery twice, inflicting flesh wounds in the policeman's left shoulder and back. Slattery, with customary police marksmanship, spent his five bullets without bringing down his man. The fusillade attracted wayfarers and the burglar darted into Flatbush avenue and escaped.

Surgeons and attendants from the Kings County Hospital ran out on hearing the shooting and they took Slattery to the institution. His wounds were dressed and pronounced not serious.

When Capt. John Zimmerman, of the Flatbush station, was notified he turned out the reserve. They went back again and nothing was doing.
